Dear Friends

The friends who founded New York Cares 25 years ago had a simple but powerful idea. They believed it should be easy for even the busiest New Yorker to volunteer in a meaningful way, and so, they created an organization which allows everyone to come together to help those who need it most.

We’ve come a long way since 1987. That first year, we ran a few dozen projects. Today, we plan and fill as many as 1,500 projects every month. The 100+ volunteers who comprised our earliest corps now number 56,000 annually. Initially run by our founders, New York Cares is now staffed by a team of 80 professionals. And while we are still grassroots in action, we are also on speed dial at City Hall and the go-to organization for our city’s most civic-minded corporations.

In 2012, New York Cares’ prowess at mobilizing volunteers took on new meaning. On October 30th, as soon as the waters from Hurricane Sandy had receded, our staff were on the frontlines of the response, assessing needs and planning volunteer projects to meet those needs. The 13,500 volunteers we deployed in November and December were a constant and reassuring presence in the hardest hit communities, where they knocked on thousands of doors to check on residents, distributed warm winter coats and served hot meals, provided translation services for isolated homebound seniors, mucked out flood-damaged residences, and much more.

Helping demolished communities thrive again will be about much more than cleanup and physical repairs. In the months to come, much of our focus will be on providing valuable social services, from tutoring programs to adult education programs, in the most heavily impacted areas. We are also helping local nonprofits and churches return to operation.

In order to give the hurricane response our all without compromising ongoing programming, we brought on new staff to manage the huge volume of Sandy-related work. The addition of this Disaster Response Department has allowed our employees to return their focus to serving our year round Community Partners at full pace.

Our founders’ vision 25 years ago would be nothing more than a good intention if not for our generous funders, tireless volunteers, invested Community Partners, and the many other friends who comprise New York Cares’ truly remarkable family. Thank you for your support in 2012, and for continuing to make New York Cares a priority in the future. We can’t do it without you.

With best wishes,

Gail B. Harris, Board President
Gary Bagley, Executive Director
OPPORTUNITY
Motivated and talented low-income public high school students are eager to go to college but can’t afford SAT prep.

OUR MISSION: New York Cares meets pressing community needs by mobilizing caring New Yorkers in volunteer service.

Our Story
New York Cares was founded in 1987, by friends who wanted to take action against the serious social issues facing New York City. Finding few options to help, they created their own organization to address problems from the ground up. They called it New York Cares.

Today, New York Cares is the city’s largest volunteer management organization, running vital programs for 1,300 nonprofits, public schools, and city agencies – which we refer to as Community Partners – to help people in need throughout the five boroughs. New York Cares was also the model for the HandsOn Network, which merged in 2007 with the Points of Light Foundation to form a network of hundreds of affiliated volunteer organizations.

Taking On Tough Challenges
Many of our Community Partners lack the staff, money, and know-how to effectively use volunteers. Enter New York Cares. We diagnose volunteer needs, develop programming, create curricula, order and pay for supplies, recruit volunteers, train project leaders, and conduct ongoing evaluations. In doing so, we allow our partners to outsource their volunteer needs to New York Cares, at no cost to the agencies or their clients.

Creating Opportunities
New York Cares volunteers dramatically expand the support available to our Community Partners and their at-risk clients. We prepare the city’s least privileged public high school students to take the SAT, provide job training to survivors of domestic violence, assist the working poor with tax filing, teach low-income children the joys of math, science, and reading, and more.

Making an Impact
Community Partners count on us to deliver vital services to the clients who rely on them for support. Last year, New York Cares mobilized 56,000 volunteers who helped 400,000 New Yorkers in need.

IMPACT
Every year, New York Cares brings its Kaplan SAT Prep program to public schools throughout the city. In 2012, volunteers worked in 40 schools and helped 1,000 students get into the colleges of their choice, including Cornell University and New York University.
For the last 25 years, New York Cares has made it possible for all New Yorkers to come together to strengthen the city.

Making It Easy to Make a Difference
When New Yorkers want to volunteer, they come to New York Cares. Our diverse programming means anyone can find a volunteer opportunity that meets their interests, and our flexibly scheduled, team-based projects make it convenient for individuals, groups, and corporations to participate in hands-on activities that make a tangible impact.

Building Leadership
Our 1,300 Team Leaders receive specialized leadership training and serve as group coordinators and project managers.

Community Partners recognize Team Leaders for their excellence, professionalism, reliability, and dedication.

Responding to Community Needs
New York Cares is dedicated to New York City, delivering volunteer support to the communities that need it most and to the agencies tackling the city’s toughest issues. From providing warm winter coats to New Yorkers facing a winter on the streets to rebuilding lives after Hurricane Sandy, volunteers are involved in systemic solutions, and are always at the ready to respond rapidly to emerging challenges.

Our programs help New Yorkers in need in every borough: homeless and low-income children and families, unemployed adults, lonely senior citizens, children and adults with special needs, immigrants with limited English, and others — even four-legged New Yorkers in animal shelters. We tend public spaces, including public schools,
New York Cares Programs

New York Cares develops and runs an average of 1,500 volunteer programs every month, providing vital support and a full range of free services to our Community Partners.

Programs for Adults
Our programs provide a safety net for vulnerable men and women, helping them build stronger careers for themselves – and thus better futures for their children – through job readiness, tax preparation services, English language practice, computer skills, and financial literacy.

Children’s Programs
When families struggle, children and young people are at a greater risk of dropping out of school, turning to drugs and crime, and continuing a life of poverty. We help break this cycle by setting them on a different path – one focused on learning and self-sufficiency – by working with public schools, homeless shelters, and other community organizations on projects involving SAT and college preparation, tutoring and homework help, urban adventures, fitness, and more.

Youth Service Programs
Our award-winning Youth Service program for public schools cultivates the next generation of volunteers. We inspire young people from struggling neighborhoods to become lifelong contributors to those communities by educating them about social issues, engaging them in youth-led volunteering, and developing their leadership skills.

Community Programs
We improve the quality of life for all New Yorkers by revitalizing public schools and open spaces, providing companionship for senior citizens, serving warm meals to the hungry, stocking food banks, working with the homeless, caring for shelter animals, and responding to disasters. We also unite the city through large-scale service days on New York Cares Day Fall (school revitalization) and Spring (park revitalization).

Corporate Service
Our Corporate Service program harnesses the power of corporate employees through customized projects for volunteers who may not otherwise have the opportunity to serve. Our offerings, which are tailored to each corporate sponsor’s specific priorities, address our city’s most pressing issues.

Graphics based on 2012 data
As the city recovers from the worst hurricane in its history – exacerbating existing record rates of unemployment and homelessness – New York Cares’ services have never been more relevant and in greater demand.

As a force multiplier for good, our model is one of the most cost-effective ways to provide and maintain fundamental services upon which the city relies. For over 25 years, New York Cares has been, and will continue to be, a reliable and powerful philanthropic investment by transforming every dollar donated into six dollars in value through the power of our volunteers.

Volunteers are more than nice to have: they are vital to the success of our community and the social sector, and New York Cares enables all New Yorkers to participate in the process.

OPPORTUNITY

51% of New York City fifth graders did not meet State Standards in English Language Arts in 2011*.

IMPACT

Volunteers close the gap through New York Cares’ Children’s Reading programs helping students achieve their full potential. In 2012, 2,500 children participated in New York Cares Literacy programs.

Volunteer or Donate at newyorkcares.org
Life is a daily struggle for at-risk New Yorkers, and 2012 was particularly taxing. The homelessness rate was at an all time high, while test scores among our city’s public school students remained substandard. And, at the end of October, one of the worst natural disasters in the country’s history struck home in the form of Hurricane Sandy, turning lives upside down and resulting in the loss of approximately 50,000 jobs.

At New York Cares, we have the privilege of sitting at the intersection of enormous challenge and the energy of 56,000 caring volunteers. It is our mission to create impactful opportunities through which New Yorkers can confront those challenges, and in 2012, our volunteers coached high school students to astounding results on the SAT, handed out warm winter coats on Christmas morning, spent entire weeks gutting water-damaged houses in the Rockaways, and so much more.

While 2012 exposed some of the city’s vulnerabilities, the outpouring of support and the power of New York Cares’ programs helped shine a spotlight on the city’s incredible strength.

Children’s Programs
Throughout the year, we provided individual attention and academic assistance for children of all ages. Our partners on these projects included public schools, transitional housing facilities, and community-based organizations.

SAT Exam Preparation
Through our longstanding partnership with Kaplan, Inc. volunteers provided free SAT preparation to more than 1,000 low-income high school students, who raised their test scores by an average of 279 points.

Arts and Recreation
New York Cares volunteers broadened the horizons of 12,000 children living in homeless shelters, hospitals, and low-income housing projects, through trips to Lincoln Center, visits to the SONY Wonder Lab Museum, apple and pumpkin picking, and more.

Academic Support
Our volunteers devoted 45,000 hours to helping public school students develop their skills in reading, writing, math, and science.

Activities for Children with Special Needs
Volunteers worked with 4,500 children and teens with disabilities on projects that included teaching cooking and nutrition to autistic children, and ice skating with children with developmental disabilities.

In 2012, New York Cares volunteers helped 32,000 low-income New Yorkers prepare their tax returns, securing more than $64 million for individuals who often don’t collect the refunds to which they are entitled. Volunteers also helped participants explore effective strategies to make ends meet, such as opening a bank account, creating a budget, and saving for college.

Job Readiness and Computer Literacy
More than 3,500 adults worked closely with volunteers on online job searches, mock interviews, and resume prep projects as they prepared to enter or re-enter the job market. Volunteers also taught essential computer skills to 4,200 New Yorkers in need.

Corporate Service
New York City’s leading companies partner with New York Cares to give their employees, a premier volunteer experience. Our Corporate Volunteer program offers diverse options for employee engagement, from team-based citywide events, to holiday donation drives, to customized projects.

In 2012, more than 800 companies partnered with New York Cares on at least one of our many corporate volunteer offerings. We created customized opportunities for more than 16,000 employees who volunteered with their colleagues, teaching reading and math skills to children, helping adults transition back to the workforce, restoring homes destroyed by Hurricane Sandy, and beautifying parks, gardens, and other community spaces.
Annual Events

New York Cares Day

FALL

› October
Six thousand New Yorkers transformed 94 public schools into inspiring learning environments on the city’s largest volunteer day for schools. In 2012, we added a direct service component to the day, with projects focused on anti-bullying, healthy eating, fitness, and the arts.

SPRING

› April
Five thousand volunteers went to work at 82 sites citywide, including parks, gardens, and ten miles of coastline on New York Cares Day Spring. With Presenting Sponsor HSBC leading the charge for a sixth year in a row, volunteers raked leaves, pruned bushes, painted fences, planted hundreds of shrubs and bulbs, and ensured cleaner and safer waterways and wetlands.

New York Cares Coat Drive

› November/December
In its 24th year, the Coat Drive kicked off two weeks early due to the unprecedented need caused by Hurricane Sandy. With the support of Presenting Sponsor HealthPlus Amerigroup, we collected and distributed a record 123,080 coats to the city’s highest risk residents.

Winter Wishes

› November/December
Volunteers answered nearly 40,000 gift requests from children, teens, and families during the holidays, with many letters asking for warm clothing or other basic needs lost in the hurricane. This program was generously sponsored by Julie Turaj and Robert Pohly.

Love a Library Debut

› September
In a first-time (and very successful) collaboration, New York Cares worked with all three of New York City’s public library systems to bring communities together to rekindle their appreciation for their libraries. With the help of the Charles H. Revson Foundation, 350 volunteers were dispatched to 24 branches of the Brooklyn Public Library, New York Public Library, and Queens Library to organize library stacks, read with children, repair old books, and help residents register for library cards.

Disaster Response

New York Cares serves as the Office of Emergency Management’s lead partner for mobilizing volunteers during disasters – a testament to our expertise at organizing and deploying teams in response to diverse needs under all manner of circumstances. As such, within hours after Hurricane Sandy made landfall, we were on the ground, bringing assistance where – and as soon as – it was needed most.

By the end of December, we had made contact with tens of thousands of residents in the impacted communities (including the Rockaways, Staten Island, and Southern Brooklyn) through the 13,500 volunteers whom we deployed on more than 800 relief and recovery projects.
